Baudhayana Sutra in Yajur Veda

Baudhayana Sulbasutra

दीर्घचतुरस्रस्याक्षणाया रज्जुः पार्श्वमानी तिर्यग्
मानी च यत् पृथग् भूते कुरुतस्तदुभयं करोति ॥

Baudhāyana used a rope as an example in the above shloka/verse, which can be translated as:

"A rope stretched along the length of the diagonal produces an area which the vertical and horizontal sides makes together"

$$c^2 = a^2 + b^2$$

The Sulbasutras is like a guide to the Vedas which formulate rules for constructing Vedi (altars). They contain valuable information about the geometry of ancient India, including instructions for constructing sacrificial altars (vedi) and locating sacred fires (agni). This formula is used in constructing Yajna Vedi (altars) in the shape of an eagle with triangular tiles in a special type of Yajna called Agnicayana (a twelve day Yajna ceremony)
